ZIPFLAT – NEW CEO NAMED

February 2, 2011

Scott E. Jewett, Founder of Zipflat announced the hiring of a new CEO, Dennis Eversole.

Dennis will lead the product introduction and the direction Zipflat in his new role.

Dennis most recently served as President and CEO for Toshiba America Business Solutions, overseeing the strategic direction and operations. “I am delighted to join the Zipflat family with the potential of helping millions of people around the world improving their lives. I am thrilled to take on a business opportunity that enables making a significant contribution to society.”

Zipflat was developed by a volunteer team of over a dozen professionals that came together with the common goal of giving back by building shelters for families in Central America. During this effort a new construction method resulted in the creation of Zipflat. The focus is currently on force mitigation and military applications, winning the “Best New Force Resistant Solution, 2010” by Government Security News.

Founded in 2009, Portable Composite Structures, Inc. is located in Irvine, California
